Four Incumbents and Four Challengers Compete for Five City Council Chairs

by Elaine Skolnik

Over 50% of Greenbelt's 3,522 registered voters are expected to vote on Tuesday, September 15, to elect the five city council members who will head the municipal government for the next two years. Incumbents Thomas X. White, Gil Weidenfeld, Richard Pilski and Richard Castaldi are seeking reelection. Out on the hustings also are challengers Bob Zugby, Ed Putens, Ronald Ott and Ed James.

Unlike the 1979 election, there are no referendum questions on the ballot. The campaign seems to be devoid of significant issues that divide the eight candidates. Their positions appear generally similar on crime control, zoning, and development and transportation. Consequently, the odds favor the incumbents who, with retiring councilman Charles F. Schwan, have served together since 1973.

Observers believe that the major contest boils down to who among the four challengers will capture the fifth seat and who will poll the highest vote among the successful candidates to be in line for selection as mayor. Since 1973, the mayor's seat has seen alities of the candidates and their degree and length of involvement in public affairs in Greenbelt. The candidates' place of residence, particularly those of the nonincumbents, may be a factor in persuading some citizens for whom they should vote. Precinct 13 (Greenbelt East) has experienced a large increase in the number of registered voters, but Precincts 3 and 6 (the center of the city) still contain five of every eight registered voters (see chart on page 14).

Candidates Nights

Voter interest has been heightened by developments that surfaced at the well-attended candidates' nights, especially with respect to the challengers. At the Utopia forum Ed Putens acknowledged receiving a $500 contribution from Windsor Green townhouse developer Allan Rozansky. Putens explained that Rozansky was divesting himself of his land in Greenbelt. Putens has returned the check to Rozansky (see story p. 6).

At the Greenbriar program, a hot issue from the last election resurfaced when the aspirants were asked their position on the pedestrian overpass over the B/W Parkway. Although the overpass is now in the design stage, an appeal by some Greenbriar Phase I owners requesting individual monetary damage is pending.

The raising of this issue has caused some uneasiness about the future of the overpass among the citizenry, especially since Schwan, an ardent supporter of the Gar-

Election Procedures

by Elaine Skolnik

Voting on election day, Tuesday, September 15, will be held from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at four polling places—the Greenbelt Municipal Building (Precinct 3—Center), St. Hugh's School (Precinct 6—North End), Springhill Lake Community Center (Precinct 8) and Greenbriar Community Center (Precinct 13—Greenbelt East). St. Hugh's, located at 135 Crescent Road, is the new polling home for Precinct 6 as a result of the closing of North End School.

Greenbelters will elect five council members for a 2-year term, all at large. In order for a candidate to be elected, he must receive 40% of the votes cast. If fewer than five candidates receive such a vote a run-off election will be held one week later on Tuesday, September 22.

In a run-off election the ballot will consist of those unsuccessful candidates receiving the highest number of votes, up to twice as many names as there are positions to be filled. Candidates polling the greatest number of votes are declared winners in the run off election, regardless of the percentage of votes received.

The 40% requirement for election was introduced in 1967. Earlier a majority vote was required, frequently resulting in run-off elections. Since 1967 no run-offs have taken place. The last run-off election in 1965 pitted Richard Pilski against Clifford Simonson.

With no slates or major issues to divide the candidates, voters must look to other factors in their decision-making such as person-

Carolyn Boone Named Miss Greenbelt 1981

Carolyn Boone was selected as the new Miss Greenbelt during the 1981 Labor Day Festival. She is the 16-year-old daughter of Danny and Judy Boone of Hedgewood Drive and the granddaughter of long-time resident Peg Baldwin of Green Ridge House.

Carolyn is presently in the 11th grade at Eleanor Roosevelt High School and following graduation intends to pursue a career in child psychology and teaching. She is employed as a receptionist at St. Hugh's Rectory and also teaches Sunday school for kindergarten-aged children at St. Hugh's Catholic Church.

Carolyn enjoys singing, songwriting, playing the piano and sewing. She uses and understands American sign language. Recently she was a part of a volunteer group at the Smithsonian folk life festival. She also works on the technical crew at the Utopia Theater. Carolyn was sponsored by the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Company 35.

First runner up was Beth Tavanello, sponsored by the Greenbelt

Recreation Department. Second runner up was Marilyn Jaunich sponsored by the First National Bank of Maryland. Third runner up was Theresa Alfaro, sponsored by the Greenbelt Jaycees. There were two Pageant Award winners, Carolyn Boone and Jill Sweeney. Jill was sponsored by Nyman Realty. The Miss Congeniality Award was presented to Marilyn Jaunich.

Co-Chairman for the 1981 Miss Greenbelt Pageant were Lesley and Stephen Kreimer. While preparing for the Pageant, the thirteen contestants enjoyed many special activities. H. T. McDoogals treated the girls to a luncheon. The banquet featured bar-b-que spareribs, shrimp, & crab, filet mignon, and ice cream sundaes. Jasper's treated the girls and their families to a reception. Donations to the Pageant included records, hair styling, color portraits, a makeup program, jewelry, pizzas, gift certificates champagne for Miss Greenbelt's family, theater passes, and health club memberships. ELECTION SURVEY QUESTIONNAIRE

Voters at next week's City election will be asked to take a few additional minutes at the polls to complete an information questionnaire. Results of the survey will serve to inform the newly elected City Council and City Staff how Greenbelt residents feel about the subjects covered. Included are questions seeking a rating of various city programs and services and opinions on expenditure levels for services. Also, there is a question addressing the surplus disposition of the North End School and possible uses for the building and grounds, including City acquisition. The last question seeks residents' opinions on the types of projects that should be considered in a multipurpose capital improvement bond issue and whether such an undertaking should be pursued by the City.

A complete copy of the questionnaire is reprinted on page 15 of this issue of the News Review. Residents who are not registered to vote or who otherwise are not planning to be at the polls are encouraged to clip and complete the questionnaire. They should be mailed or returned to the City Offices, 25 Crescent Road 20770. Voters may also, if they wish, complete the questionnaire in the paper and return it to the polls at the time they vote.

Golden Age Club

The Greenbelt Club is planning a fall picnic for all seniors at Regional Park, Clinton, for Friday, Sept. 18. They will tour the famous Surratt House; each will bring his own lunch. Two buses will leave Suburban Trust around 10 a.m. Those who have not signed up for the picnic should contact Zelpha Parsons, Travel Chairman, at 345-3904. Seniors do not have to be a member of the Club to attend.

Gary Bronstein

The victim of a senseless murder, Gary Bronstein, 39, died sometime in mid-August. He was the son of long-time Greenbelt residents Lars and Beatrice Bronstein, Southway. Reported missing since August 10 from his home in Coral Springs, Florida, Bronstein was found by police in Dade County earlier this week some 30 to 40 miles from where he disappeared. He had been shot and his body put into the trunk of a stolen car.

Bronstein was first reported missing when he failed to show up at a local skating rink to pick up his daughter. Several days later his employer reported both his disappearance and that of the company car he was driving. The car is still missing. Police in several jurisdictions in Florida are investigating the crime.

Bronstein spent his youth in Greenbelt. His family moved to the city in 1943 when he was 14 months old. He attended Center Elementary, Greenbelt Junior High and High Point High Schools and was graduated in 1965 from the University of Maryland. Bronstein married and began working for the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission supervising recreation programs for Area 2, which includes Greenbelt. He later moved to Alabama and then to Coral Springs.

Bronstein is survived by his parents; children, Michelle, 14, and Eric, 11; and a sister, Deena of Wheaton and a brother David of Baltimore.

A memorial service will be held in Greenbelt at the Lake Park with his ashes to be scattered in the Lake. Water and water sports were an important part of his life. "Water, next to air, was his most vital ingredient," said his father. He never outgrew his childhood love of swimming, boating and fishing.

E. Roosevelt PTSA

The Eleanor Roosevelt PTSA will hold a "Back to School Night" on Tuesday, September 15 at 7:30 p.m. Parents and students are urged to attend to visit classrooms and meet teachers.

Rules for Absentee Ballots

Applications for absentee ballots are now being accepted in the city clerk's office. They must be made in writing no later than noon Monday, September 14. The ballot must be returned no later than 6 p.m. election day, Tuesday the 15th. Application forms are available in the city offices.

Any qualified elector who would be prevented from voting in a city election by reason of religious beliefs, physical condition, or absence from the city on the day of the election may vote by absentee ballot.

Another Bit of History

To the Editor:

It was interesting to read Leo Gerton's "bit of history" contribution concerning the Greenbelt Branch of the County Library System. I remember the County budget hearing at which Clifford Simonson spoke and I recall that he spoke well. But one of the troubles with a "bit of history" is just that—it is merely a little bit. There were quite a few Greenbelters present at that meeting. While Simonson was, as I recall, the only member of the Greenbelt City Council who spoke on the library issue, he was not the only Greenbelter who spoke to the matter. I have a distinct recollection as to having addressed the same meeting concerning the library issue and I still have in my files the notes and outline upon which I based my talk.

But there is a history of what preceded that budget meeting. Many Greenbelters, besides Simonson and I, were responsible for the increasing pressures which made the allocation of planning funds possible and plausible. The plain fact is that it was the concern and interest of the people of Greenbelt which gave credibility to the words spoken at that budget meeting. Some of us were fighting for a new building as early as 1961.

It was not for lack of consistent and persistent activity in behalf of the new library building in Greenbelt that I was honored and privileged to give the dedication speech at the opening of the library. Those who attended that dedication service surely heard me run down a rather extensive list of those Greenbelters whose efforts played a not inconsiderable part in achieving a desired result.

I do hope that the Greenbelt City Council was not in error when they passed a resolution of appreciation for my effective leadership in helping to make the new library a reality. When I received that honor I accepted it in behalf of all those who had worked so hard and whose efforts were crowned with success.

The overwhelming fact is that it was a people's effort, a cooperative effort, a community effort. And this fact is more than a little bit of history—the library stands as a monument to the good people of Greenbelt who united to get what they needed and deserved. That fact is bigger than any individual.

A hearty thank you to all who supported the Eleanor Roosevelt Orchestra with their donations at the concert and those who patronized our two booths at the Festival. Not Related

To the Editor:

During a recent trip with the Golden Age Club of Greenbelt, I was asked whether Ed James and I are related. Some said they had heard he was my nephew; one said she had heard he was my son (and I—a maiden lady of impeccable reputation).

Ed James and I are not related. We have checked ancestors and his immigrant ancestor named James came from an entirely different section of the British Isles than my James immigrant ancestor.

Another Great Festival

To the Editor:

We enjoyed another activity-filled Labor Day in Greenbelt, thanks to the hundreds of hours of effort that were donated by volunteers in making this 27th Festival a very joyous one. No matter what type of interests persons had, there was something for them, ranging from toddler contests for our younger residents to an Art Show or Band Concert for our older citizens. In between, there were a wide variety of participatory or viewing events.

The most amazing Festival ingredient, however, is that there is always some person to take up a task when the person that did it before can no longer do so. This perpetuating spirit should insure that there will be at least 73 more Festivals and perhaps one of the Diaper Derby Contest Winners in 1931 will be selected as Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen in 2054.

On behalf of myself and my family, thank you, whether you were chairperson of an event or worked behind the scenes, for a very memorable week-end.

Stephen Polaschik

Proud to Serve Greenbelt

To the Editor:

It is indeed a great privilege to be able to be elected to represent the citizens of Greenbelt. The activities of this past week including the outstanding Greenbelt festival, the citizen and community activities and the Labor Day parade all shone forth as a genuine example of a city virtually throbbing with community interest and pride in accomplishments.

Greenbelt should be congratulated. Thank you for allowing me to represent you for the last 19 years.

Candidate's Response

To the Editor:

I realize how difficult it is for a reporter to take down every word said during meetings, panel discussions and the like, so I usually let misquotes pass when the flavor is there, even if the exact wording is changed. But the coverage of the first Candidates' Night on August 26 at the Greenbelt Library's Meeting Room was a little too far out of line for my taste, and I feel a response is in order. First of all, I did not say "... police foot patrols rather than cars." This would be a poor use of our available resources. I said that I would like to have an occasional foot patrol on a random basis to keep the criminal element off guard. This would be similar to "Radar Controlled" roads, where an occasional Radar setup tends to make a motorist think twice about speeding. If a criminal knows that the Police never walk the streets, then he becomes a little bolder. The introduction of uncertainty would, I hope, have a deterring effect. I did, however, support the concept of citizen foot patrols, which would be equipped with walkie-talkies to call the police when needed. The citizen patrol would not, of course, directly intervene in any criminal or civil affair. This type of activity has worked in many other cities, and should work well in Greenbelt with our well-touted expertise in organization and cooperation.

The other bone of contention is the statement that I did not answer the question on special assessments directly. I always answer questions directly, even if I have to say that I don't know the answer. In the current case, my answer was that I felt a professional developer would not need the type of special assessment mentioned in the question. I went on to say that the current street improvement requirements should be looked at to see if perhaps they were too strong, as was reported. I hope this letter clears up any misunderstandings that may have resulted and will leave it at that.

FEWER COUNCILMEN DISTRICTS FORCES COUNCIL REDISTRICTING

by Mavis Fletcher

If the preference expressed by a majority of speakers at a public meeting on county redistricting is a reliable guide, the plan eventually submitted to County Council by the Council Redistricting Commission will closely resemble that proposed by commission member Ella Ennis. Speaker after speaker voiced approval of the Ennis plan in preference to the other three plans presented at a meeting in Hyattsville Library on September 1.

Commission Chairman Hervey Machen opened the meeting by explaining that the commission was not as yet committed to any plan. The four plans being presented at a series of three public meetings were "a cross-section" of the 12-5 plans which had been presented to the commission. These public meetings, not mandated by the commission's charter, are being held to get public input prior to submission of a single plan to the County Council on September 15. Machen also noted that the legal deadline of the submission of a plan to the council was October 1 but that the commission had established a self-imposed deadline of September 15 for submitting the plan.

The redistricting battle was set in motion by the passage of Question K in the 1980 election. Under its terms, the membership of the County Council will be reduced from 11 to 9, making it inevitable that at least two incumbents will lose their seats. Moreover, each of the nine council members will be elected from a councilmanic district; there will be no at-large seats. Therefore, the redistricting commission which is charged with carving out the councilmanic districts has an extremely difficult task, a fact which was acknowledged by many of the speakers at the September 1 meeting.

The originators of three of the plans were present to explain the rationale and particular merits of their plans. Commission member Ella Ennis enumerated the principles which underlie her plan—regional balance; compact and contiguous districts; population balance (plus or minus 2.5 percent from the ideal size); three districts with, respectively, 55, 66 and 81 percent black population.

Commission member Thomas Hendershot explained that minority representation was the paramount concern of his plan and that this concern was translated into three districts with heavy concentrations of black residents (55, 67 and 75 percent). He also stated that his plan would give improved representation to the southern part of the county.

Dennis Smith, Glenarden City Councilman, discussed the Wynn-Smith plan, which he said had been drawn up with the advice of a number of different civic groups with the aim of affording the maximum opportunity for minority representation. This plan also provides for the three districts with heavy minority populations of 57, 64 and 80 percent.

No one appeared on behalf of the so-called 'Plan X' authored by council administrative officer Samuel Wynkoop.

Local Concerns

A large number of College Park residents and officials protested the splitting of College Park into more than one councilmanic district. After Ennis explained briefly that her plan could be revised to remedy this split, several of the College Park residents voiced tentative approval of that plan.

Another large group of attendees came from the Colmar Manor-Chillum area to express their interest in adequate minority representation, defined by several speakers as three districts with minority populations of 55 percent or more. All plans except Plan X appear to meet this requirement.

Ray McCawley of Greenbelt expressed his approval of either the Ennis or Wynn-Smith plan, stating that he opposed Plan X because it put Greenbelt in the same district as Bowie, a larger city. No official Greenbelt position was expressed at this meeting.

denway location, is retiring. Ott responded that on the one hand he opposes condemning private property, but on the other hand he favors safety (see story on page 16). James decried the use of condemnation of private land. Putens felt the matter had been settled—he favored the present overpass location for safety reasons. Zugby, while objecting that the project had become too costly, said the issue was moot.

Incumbents Weidenfeld and White reiterated their support for the Gardenway location. Pilski and Castaldi, who had originally opposed that location, said they have accepted the decision made by council and supported by the results of the 1979 referendum in which 88% of those voting favored the Gardenway location.

Observers also speculate that differences within the GHI community might spill over into the city election. After a spirited contest last May, James lost his bid for reelection to the GHI Board.

Putens and Zugby, who reside in Greenbelt East, (Precinct 13) are making determined first-time bids for a seat on council. If either or both were successful, it would be the first time since 1971 that a candidate who resided outside the center of the city was elected. In that year, Gil Weidenfeld, then a resident of Springhill Lake, was elected to his first term. Two years later, Weidenfeld was reelected, but by then he lived in Boxwood. That same year, then Springhill Lake resident Jim O'Sullivan was defeated by fewer than 20 votes. That was the closest to success any non-center resident has come since 1971, although Konrad Herling of Springhill Lake garnered 48% of the vote two years ago.

No less determined in their efforts are the nonincumbent candidates who live in the center portion of the city, Ed James and Ron Ott.

It looks like a horserace among the challengers and, for the first time in 16 years, there appears to be a chance that a runoff election might be necessary.

Swim Team Banquet

Greenbelt Swim Team will hold its Banquet on September 18 at 6:30 in Grenoble Hall for swimmers and their families. Members should notify Kathy Reed at 345-3228 before Sept. 14 if they plan to attend.

Pilski won by one vote.

Voters will be asked to complete a city prepared information questionnaire dealing with city programs and services, possible acquisition of and uses for North End School, and types of projects that should be included in a capital improvements bond issue and whether the city should pursue a bond issue. (See questionnaire, page 15.)

Some 3,522 Greenbelters are currently on the voter registration rolls, up 3.2% from 1979. (See chart, page 4.) The number of eligible voters at Precincts 3, 6, and 8 have declined while Precinct 13, in which the Greenbriar condominium and Glen Oaks apartments and Windsor Green Townhouse complex are located, has experienced an increase of almost 60%.

Casting votes in the 1979 council election were 2,111 Greenbelters, 62% of the registered voters. Sixty-seven percent of Center's eligible voters cast ballots in '79, 69% of North End's, 38% of Springhill Lake's and 56% of Greenbriar's.

If all five council members are elected on September 15, there will be an organizational meeting on Monday, Sept. 21. (This meeting is set by charter.) If there is a runoff election, the organizational meeting will be held on Monday, Sept. 28.

Upon being sworn in, the newly elected council will choose the mayor.

In 1977, 59% of the electorate turned out; in 1975, 48%; in 1973, 54%; and in 1971, 54%. However, in 1969 a hot election brought out 75% of the 2,991 registered voters.

Council Candidates Audition for Votes at Utopia Theater

by Leta Mach

Of the various nights held to acquaint Greenbelt voters with the eight candidates running for election to the city council, the forum sponsored by the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center (GCAC) on September 2 featured the most unique program.

Moderator Gerry Gough, a former city councilman and GHI board member, found the event a "great pleasure for me because I don't have to take any heat of being a candidate." Candidates were given three minutes for an opening statement. Afterward three panelists, Peter Pichaske, Reverend Kenneth Buker, and J Davis, asked prepared questions of the candidates. Finally members of the audience had their chance. Gough explained that his role was to "keep it going, keep it flowing, and keep the answers right on target."

Candidate's Statements

Richard Pilski found the Utopia Theater setting appropriate because on the stage were "eight people auditioning for the main parts in a play." The audience or citizens of Greenbelt would decide what parts — mayor or four equal councilmen — the candidates would play, he recognized. For the past 18 years, Pilski noted, his part has ranged from the smallest supporter to the lead. "Being honest, I preferred the mayor or lead role," he said. "I hope my performance for Greenbelt has been good," he added.

Richard Castaldi felt he was the most fortunate candidate because he was born in Greenbelt. "That's what Greenbelt is all about — a lot of families were raised here and some of the children stayed," he added, "I've worked hard and want to continue to work hard for the city of Greenbelt." He noted his experience with the Planning Commission, experience which he would use to get development that was good for Greenbelt. He also felt citizen support was needed for crime prevention.

Bob Zugby felt "the major issue that is facing and has been facing Greenbelt for many years is the issue of growth." This growth he explained, tends to create problems such as crime and traffic. The city "can't stop, but can control growth," he said. He pledged to see that the problems which arise are foreseen. Zugby stated that a city transit system could be started with Federal seed money.

Thomas White spoke about the concept of life in Greenbelt, growth and development, and intergovernmental relations. In his years on council, White noted his support for acquisition of green space and bikeways, assistance to the Cultural Center, and keeping the post office in the Center. He suggested that Greenbelt's response to development threats should be wherever possible to reduce density of zoned areas and make developers follow strict environmental standards. Council should also work to influence other governmental bodies which impact upon Greenbelt.

Ed Putens felt, "People want someone on council who will respond and work with people. I'm willing to do that," he added. He expressed his support for Metro, recreation facilities, and the elderly. He also noted his work with the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB) on crime.

Gil Weidenfeld believed many people would know his position on Greenbelt issues from his past work on council. Because "Greenbelt is not an island," he called attention to his work outside the city. He has "been able to get Greenbelt's voice heard," while serving as president of the Prince George's County Municipal Association, board member of the Council of Governments, and vice-president of the Maryland Municipal League. Such work, he said, has resulted in better tax differential legislation and one of the highest rebates to a city for services it provided.

Ronald Ott cited his record of experience. He has served as chairperson of the Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) when it proposed restricted parking for the Lake Park and memorial guidelines for naming city property. He described himself as a "background person," a worker not a talker. "Doing little things well is a step to doing big things," was his theme from Forbes Magazine.

Ed James explained that he has "tried to be very active and community oriented." He noted his organization of Citizens for Greenbelt and work on the GHI Board of Directors. He called for recognition for people who help solve crimes and a self-supporting commuter van for city transportation. Since development couldn't be stopped, he supported development which would provide places for people to work. "I like to think I have a good head on my shoulders and I'd like people to put a good head on council," he concluded.

Panelists' Questions

Next the panelists asked questions and each candidate had one minute to respond before a bell sounded. Reverend Kenneth Buker asked the first question. He was concerned about city programs for youth and elderly and asked whether the candidates would be willing to have a two to five percent raise in taxes to support these programs. To a man the candidates said they would support an increase. The incumbents gave the recently passed budget as an example. Pilski and Zugby noted that the overall budget would have to be examined. James felt the base and not just the increase would have to be justified.

Buker's other question was similar. "Would you consider a bond issue of not less than $400,000 up to $1 million for capital improvements?" he asked. Putens said he would have to know what the money would be spent for. "No problem if the need is worthy," said Zugby. Some things might be okay, even though the bond market is poor, Castaldi felt. Pilski recalled how in the past a bond issue with no merit failed while a higher one with merit passed. Streets and more parkland would receive his support, said Weidenfeld, "but have to consider timing." Ott lamented, "Weidenfeld stole my answer." James said "not at this point in time." However, he would support it "if the market picks up and there is no better alternative." White said he would support one for greenspace and added it would take almost a year to prepare for a bond issue.

Pichaske asked the candidates whether they supported city transportation and if so how they proposed funding it. Recalling that the city had a bus system once, Castaldi said the city cannot support a transportation system. It would have to be supported by citizens and businesses. Weidenfeld remembered a federal grant to study the issue. Since the results of that study found the city couldn't underwrite the system, he hoped businesses could support one. Pilski also remembered the old system and study. He felt businesses and the city would have to develop the system. Putens proposed businesses fund it. Ott suggested a franchise perhaps with the University of Maryland. James suggested that council organize, businesses support, and people pay a little for a system. Zugby suggested a similar combination of sources to support it with federal seed money in the beginning. White was very much in favor of the idea because it's "one of the large unmet needs of Greenbelt."

Competition to the town center also concerned Pichaske, who asked about ways to revitalize the town center. While noting that it is hard to work with the present owner, Ott felt the city portion of the center could be supported. James felt an intra-city transportation system would be an important step toward revitalization. Zugby felt the post office and Cultural Center would attract patrons. Pilski felt that aesthetically something could be done by the owner. White also felt the facade could use improvement and that the city might help the owner find a loan. The city should use its tools (ownership of center parking) to get what it wants from the owner, said Castaldi. Putens said businesses had to be encouraged to stay in the center. Weidenfeld felt the answer was a three-way partnership of the city to find loans, of the owner to do more, and of citizens to shop in the center.

J Davis was concerned about the crime wave and asked if the present police force was adequate and how it could be improved. White felt the force was adequate and that efforts should be concentrated on educational programs such as Crime Watch. Castaldi noted that two more officers were added during the last budget process and felt more would be added when affordable and needed. Putens felt the force was not adequate, "but the answer is not to put on more officers, . . . (there) has to be a crime prevention program also." Weidenfeld noted the Police Chief felt the force was adequate. He suggested citizen support for crime prevention. Ott felt part of the problem was caused by the courts putting criminals back on the streets. He suggested county police help in fringe areas of town "The size is sufficient," said James, "the answer is better public awareness and citizen participation." Zugby also felt there should be more active citizen participation. Pilski also noted the two additional officers and suggested patrols on the streets rather than in vehicles might be tried.

Davis also asked how the candidates would "increase the visibility of women and minorities at all levels of the city." All the candidates felt women were active throughout Greenbelt. In fact, the candidates expressed surprise that no woman had chosen to run in the election.

"What would you do to ensure beneficial development of Greenbelt and how would you incorporate new parts?" was another question Davis asked. Although he would rather have no development, Weidenfeld said he would encourage free-standing homes and community participation. Ott felt developers could be forced to build quality and Greenway was a good example. He also felt newcomers were welcomed if they introduced themselves into community affairs. James said he would favor office complexes (places where Greenbelters could work, and free-standing homes. Many people moving into new developments were already Greenbelters, he felt. Zugby supported freestanding homes and parkland. Pilski also called for single-family homes. He felt annexation was the answer because most land is outside the city. "The three D's," explained White. "Decrease density, delay, and demand quality development." Castaldi also called for annexation and felt there were too many multi-family developments. Although there is not much area left, Putens said, "The key is in working very closely with developers."

Citizens' Questions

Councilman Charles Schwan asked the first question, also about development. He prefaced it by commenting that he didn't know he was so popular, "until I decided not to run." During his answer, Ott suggested that one candidate disqualify himself because he had accepted money from a developer. Later when another citizen asked for more details Putens explained that he had received a contribution from Allan Rozansky. However, he said Rozansky also contributed to other Greenbelt organizations such as the Cultural Arts Center and was no longer developing in the Greenbelt area. (Putens has since returned the check.)

Other questions concerned a city newsletter, the city comment on redistricting plans, crime prevention, and the Greenbelt Road speed limit.

A CONTINUING COMMITMENT:

A significant aspect of Greenbelt City government can be labelled "Intergovernmental Relations." Almost on a daily basis, important issues arise which may involve actions of a county, regional, state or federal agency. Zoning matters, revenue sharing or school closings quickly come to mind; but there are many others, including: Post Office relocation; County tax differential; Program Open Space; Disposition of county surplus land; State grant to Greenbelt CARES; Cooperative recreation and planning programs with MNCPPC; Elderly housing; State highway program; Federal, state and county commitment to the Greenbelt E Line; Preserving the B-W Parkway; and State supplemental grants for police protection.

I have the experience to participate effectively in promoting Greenbelt's interest in these and similar issues — A strong City Council representing a unified community is our best bet.

With Your Help, I want to continue serving this community.

Citizens use the cooperative system simply by presenting their own library card or some form of identification at any public library in the following jurisdictions: the District of Columbia, Alexandria, Falls Church and Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun, Montgomery, Prince Georges and Prince William Counties.

William Hoff Named Outstanding Citizen

by Leta Mach

The announcement of William Hoff as Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen of 1981 elicited enthusiastic applause and nods of approval.

"All I can say is thank you very much," Hoff said emotionally as he accepted the Outstanding Citizen plaque. State Delegate Joan Pitkin presented him with a citation from Governor Harry Hughes. Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen also received a bond from C & P Telephone Company, a dish garden from Beltway Florist, and a "Greenbelt is Great" T-shirt from Greenbelt Nursery School.

"This year's Outstanding Citizen is truly a man for all seasons," began Outstanding Citizen Chairperson Linda Shevitz, as she prepared to break the suspense by naming the citizen who had been deemed outstanding. During his 30 years as a Greenbelter, Hoff has served the city in numerous areas "ranging from government to public relations to church to community service activities."

His six years as a city councilman were crucial years — years filled with decisions about growth and development. During this time he represented Greenbelt on the area Council of Governments. He also served on both the city and Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) personnel boards. As a GHI member, he participated on many ad hoc committees.

Other community service included American Legion Community Service Chairman. His eclectic interests are evident from other activities such as President of the Garden Club. For many years, he has been an active member of the Methodist Church.

Even outside Greenbelt Hoff has been recognized as an outstanding citizen. He is fondly remembered by many as the long-time manager of the University of Maryland Student Union. This respect was evident when the Student Union theater was named in his honor.

Recently, he has spent considerable time working with the Parkinson Disease Society. This involvement has been at all levels from local to national. As a result, he helped found the society.

Afterwards, Hoff told the News Review that he felt very good and had been surprised. As he recalled the speech Shevitz made before disclosing the name of this year's Outstanding Citizen, Hoff said, "I heard her talking and then she started saying things that I knew I did so I wondered what was happening."

Policy Questions on Siding of Additions Dominate Special GHI Board Meeting

by June Webb

What had been billed as a short special meeting on August 27 to deal with the gutter and downspout contract and the marital status court ruling, turned into a long meeting concerned mostly with the siding of frame home additions. The status of the flat roofs and the oil contract were also discussed.

General Manager Tim Mitter gave a status report on the frame home siding work. As required by the NCCB loan contract, one building, in 71 Court, is being sided as a test.

Beltway Aluminum is not required by its contract to side additions. According to Mitter, siding of an addition is the sole responsibility of the member, who is to contact the contractor of his choice directly to make arrangements for installation and payment. GHI inspectors will check the quality of the work. Instead, the company will issue credit to GHI for the percent of original unit covered by an addition that is not sided.

In answer to a question from president Jim Smith as to whether board policy statements and the siding contract differ, Mitter said yes. Several board members reminded staff that additions were to be sided as part of rehab, with the owner being billed for the cost. They expressed surprise to find that this would not be done.

The color of the building and addition could differ if the siding on both were not installed at the same time, said Margaret Hogenesen, dye lots differ in shade, even if the same siding manufacturer and color are used. She also was concerned that members would have to come up with cash to pay for siding their additions. Smith asked staff to assure that contractors deal fairly with GHI members.

Financing

Steve Curtis said that GHI should try to help members find financing to pay for the siding of their additions. The NCCB loan can only be used to side the original unit. Curtis also said that additions should be inspected for structural damage before siding is installed. Mitter expressed more worry about structural damage in additions than about finding the means to side them.

Following up a question by Joe Jenkins, Smith directed staff to determine the number of additions needing siding, and whether the owners want the siding installed when the rest of the unit is being sided. Staff said there are at least 30 additions to frame homes.

Smith asked the members who were present for their comments and questions. Arthur Zola thought it more logical to side both unit and addition at the same time, and trade the credit now being given for work not done, for the cost of siding the corresponding wall of the addition.

Tim Farley said the effort to upgrade the GHI community would be defeated if members can't afford to side their additions. Evelyn Feller wanted GHI to see that members are charged a fair price for the siding of their additions.

The board directed staff to assist in finding financing for the siding of additions. An agreement would have to be signed releasing GHI from responsibility for the pre-existing condition of additions. Gary Morningstar, Chief of Administrative Services, noted that some additions are in such bad shape that nailing on siding might cause them to crumble.

In a later interview with management, Mitter stated that the funding agencies (HUD/P.G. county and NCCB) would be contacted about the feasibility of using their money to side the addition wall corresponding to the original unit. (The money is there to side all original walls of frame homes). The inside wall of screened-in porches will be sided.

Gutter, Downspout Contract

Management presented to board for approval the gutter and downspout contract with Mead and Company. After a "walk through" the contract with Morningstar, and some discussion of technical points, the board voted approval of the $89,000 contract, with directors Jenkins and Lewis opposing.

As with the siding, the board was presented with this contract by the staff, and asked to approve it quickly rather than review it extensively before acting. Smith, while realizing the necessity for a timely approval of the contract, stated that in the future he would prefer that the board have sufficient time to review proposed contracts before bids go out.

Flat Roofs

Joe Whalen, maintenance staff, spoke about the condition of the block home roofs. While eighty percent of the roofs have been replaced within the past 10 years, he said, 60-70% of these relatively new roofs are already giving problems. All the flat top roofs need replacing, he stated, showing examples out from a member's roof — compacted, waterlogged. GHI must pay for water damage caused by the roof leaks.

No action was taken.

Oil Contract

A letter of intent was sent to Stewart, which had quoted the low price of $1.1297 per gallon of fuel oil. This is a 3.6% increase over last year's fuel oil cost.

TOM WHITE

A Continuing Commitment:

●To Maintain the Unique Character of Greenbelt

I will continue to use every opportunity to maintain the distinctive quality of our community. Whether it is saving a stand of trees as part of an agreement with a developer, providing strong opposition to increased density, holding developers to strict environmental standards or working to keep the Post Office in the Center, my goal is the same - PRESERVING GREENBELT.

●To Unify the City

I have actively supported and I will continue to support:

- (1) Completion of the pedestrian overpass connecting East Greenbelt to the Center;
- (2) adequate provision for pedestrian/bicycle access with the Kenilworth Avenue/Greenbelt Road intersection improvements;
- (3) development of a pedestrian/bicycle path from Lake Park area to the Springhill Lake Community;
- (4) Metro subway service to Greenbelt and
- (5) local transportation services to meet the needs of youth and elderly.

●To Provide Essential Services

During my eight years on Council, I have established a record for sound and prudent budgeting. Balance and perspective are required to allocate the city's resources in a responsible and prudent fashion. Increased development, while expanding our tax base, has created demand for additional services. I will work to achieve economies where possible, and to promote additional sources of revenue from state and county governments.

●To Plan for Future Needs

One of the surest ways to keep Greenbelt green is to be able to purchase strategic parcels of land for parks/green space. I support a bond issue to provide funds for such purposes. Greenbelt's share of program open space funds from the state should be increased. I propose the formation of an economic development advisory group to provide advice to the Council on future development, rehabilitation programs and community improvement. I believe we should develop a Community Energy Program to assist all parts of the city in practical conservation efforts.

RE-ELECT for RE-ELECT COUNCIL

"Unity through Community Participation"

Richard is a lifetime resident of Greenbelt and has served his community by being responsive to citizen and community needs. He has worked hard for developing and planning the Green Ridge House for senior and physically handicapped citizens.

To more adequately address the ever increasing crime problem and deter the rate of increase within the city, Richard supports additional manpower allocations and the rescheduling of patrols to coincide with criminal activity. He has been a strong supporter of bikeways, parkland acquisition, and development for the City.

The current highway proposals are of real concern to Greenbelt, with new major changes affecting both residential and commercial projects. Richard's position as 1979-1980 Chairman of the National Regional Transportation Planning Board will guarantee that Greenbelt's views are given proper consideration.

Richard has nineteen (19) years of Zoning and Planning experience and is an active member of the Council of Governments, with eight (8) years on the Transportation Planning Board and Human Resource Policy Board. He was elected outstanding young American in 1977 by the National Jaycees of America, and was Greenbelt's 1978-1979 State Director.

As Councilman, Richard will continue to use good financial judgment in implementing programs of service for the City.

Police Blotter

A female employee of NASA, who was attempting to catch a bus and who walked to different bus stops on Greenbelt Road, was accosted by a male subject at 11 p.m., taken into a nearby wooded area and raped.

One of the suspects identified in the McDoogal's armed robbery case has turned himself in and has been charged. He at present is in the County Jail under $25,000 bond.

During the early morning hours, a resident of Springhill Lake observed an intruder inside the apartment. Upon discovery, the suspect ran out of the building. Cpl. David R. Kress, Officer Craig Rich and Sgt. James R. Craze searched the area, located and arrested the suspect. The officers were commended by the Greenbelt police chief for their excellent response and teamwork.

Cpl. Edward D. Blake apprehended a male subject in a stolen car that had been stolen a few minutes before on Hanover Parkway. It was later learned that several cars were tampered with in an effort to steal them. An attempt was also made to steal two motorcycles.

Candidates Night In Greenbelt East

by Sandra Barnes

Approximately 60 people turned out at the Greenbriar Community Building on Thursday, September 3, to hear the eight candidates for city council espouse their views and answer questions. All were asked to give their positions on crime, development, and improving communications among sectors of the city.

All seemed to agree that crime was more prevalent because of increased development, commercial and residential, and that citizen involvement in crime control can be an effective weapon against crime. The incumbents stood on their record of approving in the last budget the addition of two police officers to the force and opening the door to increased community involvement by asking the Community Relations Advisory Board to study the question.

One challenger, Ed James, suggested that people with citizen band radios patrol some areas and notify the police of suspicious activity. Another challenger, Ron Ott, described the size of the police department as adequate, saying he would not favor adding "more strength (in the department) due to budget restraints."

All opposed multifamily development, preferring single family housing whenever possible, and townhouses as the next best. Commercial development most desirable would be "quality" office complexes, they said, which require little service and provide substantial tax benefits. As members of council each promised to take tough stands to force such quality. Incumbent Tom White supported a bond issue to provide funds for purchasing as much park land and green space as possible.

More citizen participation, they said, would generate greater communication among the various parts of the city. Ott suggested that barriers such as highways may divide the community physically, but not emotionally.

Sparks flew when the challengers were asked their position on the long-delayed overpass over the Baltimore-Washington Parkway to Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Two years ago at the last election, this was a major campaign issue. Subsequently, the city instituted condemnation proceedings as a group of Greenbriar Phase I residents sought to defeat or delay the building of the overpass. Although the overpass is now in the design stage, no construction has been started and an appeal by some Greenbriar Phase I owners seeking individual damages is still pending.

All challengers seemed uncomfortable with the subject. Ott expressed mixed emotions—while concerned about safety, philosophically he opposed condemnation of private property. Incumbent Tom White pulled out an old issue of the News Review in which Ott's name appeared first in an ad endorsing the overpass at the Gardenway location. Ott reiterated his reservation while acknowledging the endorsement which had required condemnation of less than one-tenth of an acre of land through woods and a parking lot median strip in Phase I. Challenger Ed James said it was "dreadful to condemn personal property" and that the location of the overpass should not have been such a critical issue in the election. Favoring the overpass at its present location for safety, Putens felt the matter had been settled. Zugby objected that the project had become too costly. The price the city will end up paying, he said, is much more than it originally contemplated. Anyway, he said, the question was moot.

Incumbents Gil Weidenfeld and Tom White reiterated their strong support for the overpass at the Gardenway location. The other two incumbents Richard Pilski and Richard Castaldi noted that they had previously opposed the the Gardenway location but supported an overpass at Mandan Road. However, they said since then they have accepted the decision made by the council and supported by the results of the 1979 referendum in which 88% of the electorate favored the Gardenway location.

In response to the question on whether the candidates favored election by precinct rather than at-large as is presently the case, all felt the present system works well. Incumbent Castaldi felt that five council members representing all the citizens is preferable to five council members representing selected districts which would encourage parochial decisions and vote trading. In addition, the present system allows the five candidates the voters most prefer to be elected, stated Castaldi and White. Zugby commented that new residents, particularly in areas outside the core of the city, often feel isolated, but involvement in civic affairs brings them into the community. As he wryly joked, "If God had intended Greenbelt to be one community, he would never have created the Baltimore-Washington Parkway."

In the age-old political spirit, all the incumbents and all the challengers promised a Windsor Green resident they would vote for plantings for a buffer strip she described as an eyesore in her community.

A resident of Greenbriar asked that candidates support a petition to the school board to dedicate unused property to the city. All agreed they would, although White indicated he preferred the property to remain in the school board's possession as long as possible, thereby ensuring that the several parcels—in Greenbriar, Windsor Green and the 80 acres west of the Parkway—remained green areas.

The program ended when incumbent Pilski accused his fellow councilman Weidenfeld of misuse of an official portrait of the present city council when the latter used the photo in his campaign literature. Pilski objected, stating it conveyed tacit endorsement of Weidenfeld and he, Pilski, always ran independently—except for one occasion. Surprised, Weidenfeld commented that he had not intended to offend Pilski or any of the other members of council presently running for reelection, noting that he also had a picture of himself with Governor Harry Hughes and—so far—Hughes had not endorsed his candidacy either. Weidenfeld felt it appropriate for people in public office to use photographs taken in any official capacity.

State Representative Joan Pitkin's appearance at the meeting following one by State Senator Edward Conroy the previous night and one by Leo Green the previous week, led White to ask Pitkin: "Who'll be watching Greenbelt at the next candidates' night?"

Where Does Ed Putens Stand On Development?

To set the record straight:

Early in my campaign, a member of my steering committee received a contribution from Allan Rozansky (the developer of Windsor Green and a member of the Board of Directors). He is no longer building homes within the city and is selling his remaining property rights to U.S. Homes. However, to avoid even an appearance of impropriety the contribution was returned.

More important, my position on development in Greenbelt continues to be as I have stated it. In brief, I favor and I shall work for the least dense and highest quality development possible. This means, for example, single family homes between GHI and the B-W Parkway, much the largest undeveloped residential tract in the city. It means the city's acquiring in any area developed for residences the maximum amount of land for green and other open space through mandatory dedication and strategic purchasing of park land.

for city council

"My wife Dea and I chose Greenbelt as the ideal community in which to raise our daughter Kristina. Our choice was based on the emphasis given to family and spiritual values by the people of Greenbelt. I believe it is my obligation to commit all my abilities to the preservation and strengthening of those values. This commitment, I am convinced, can best be implemented, at this time, by service on the Greenbelt City Council."

A Commitment to Greenbelt

Greenbelters Win at Fair

by Corinne Comulada

The Prince Georges County Fair, held at Bowie Race Track from August 11 to 16, was a big success as far as many Greenbelt entrants were concerned.

Several Greenbelters won honors in diversified categories.

Perhaps the biggest honor was given to Cathy Judy, 25, of Lakecrest Drive, who was second runner-up in the Miss Prince Georges County Fair for 1981. The title went to Vickie Acosta, 19, of Largo.

According to Nancy Keppler, Assistant Manager, four Greenbelters won prizes in the Needlecrafts, Clothing, Handicrafts, and Baked Goods categories.

Mrs. Alan Collins, of Lakeside Drive, a prolific seamstress and knitter, won many second and third place ribbons for entries ranging from infants' clothing to a bathing suit. A navy tailored coat won her the prized blue ribbon. Collins' knitting was represented by a cap, sweater and cap, red and gray slippers, and ascot—all blue ribbon winners.

Dave Conrad won second and third place for a pair of porch swings.

The Canned Goods department was represented by Susan Sterrett, who won first prize for tomatoes and third for sliced beets and sweet cucumbers.

Anna Jones' entry, cinnamon buns, garnered first prize in Baked Goods.

Keppler said that she was very impressed with the high quality of this year's entries.

Metro Changes Destination For Orange, Blue Lines

The Transit Authority made changes to the destinations of the Blue and Orange Metrorail lines last week.

Because there are more riders on the New Carrollton end of the Orange Line and the Pentagon end of the Blue Line, these lines have been linked. With ridership lighter on the Ballston end of the Orange Line and the Addison Road end of the Blue Line, the number of cars in each train will be reduced and the terminals linked in a single line. The number of trips and rush hour schedules on each line will remain the same.

Trains leaving Ballston will be marked Addison Road. Passengers going to New Carrollton may transfer at any station between Rosslyn and Stadium Armory.

Trains leaving National Airport will be marked New Carrollton.

Trains leaving New Carrollton will be marked National Airport. Riders who want to go to Addison Road must transfer at Stadium Armory. Passengers going to Ballston may transfer at any station between Stadium Armory and Rosslyn.

Trains leaving Addison Road will be marked Ballston. Passengers going to New Carrollton must transfer at Stadium Armory.

Brochures explaining the change are available from the station attendants. Announcements will be made in the stations and on the trains. For information call 637-2437.
